NUMBER 19

Never Bond Her.

Our constitution says: "equal rights to all and exclusive privileges to none." We don't want anything that is unconstitutional, but we as a great common people do want our rights and the time is here that we can obtain them if we will all fall in line and work to our goal. A man of today, it matters not how poor he may be, if only dressed in a pair of fifty cents overalls can do as much good at the polls as a Rockefeller or a Vanderbilt.

Now I want to say in regard to the bond business that the Adair County News said in an article week before last that the Taylor county bond business had been exaggerated and misrepresented. Now if this was hurled at me, as I believed it was, I have just this to say, that the man or set of men that says that I misrepresented anything in regard to the Taylor county bonds tells a malicious and willful falsehood. I have been referred to in a belittling way more than once since the agitating of bonds has been in progress, but I am just now as I was on the beginning. I am in favor of a reasonable road tax to be expended in each Magisterial district from whence it came for the betterment of its own roads. Now fellow-citizens you all know that is a fair proposition, let every man, rich or poor, white or black, get the benefit of what he pays, and do away with taxation without representation. Now there is a clique in Adair county composed principally of moneyed men that are continually trying to get their fingers in the great common people's eyes and lead, drive or bluff them into submission and the agitation of the bond business is the hardest lick that the great common people have ever been struck, but fellow citizens we as a body can rise up and knock such an insult into oblivion.

The Adair County News says that the fighting of the bond business only delays it, that it will surely come and it also says that Adair county will bloom as a rose and not until then. "Preposterous," "obnoxious." I for one will not stand for such a thing. Fellow citizens what will you do? Come out of your hiding, come to the rescue of the nearest and dearest place on earth to you, the place where our fathers, mothers and dear ones are buried and say that we will not suffer our own dear good old county that has fed and clothed us from infancy to the present day disgraced by having a bond placed on her. Stop, think just for one moment. What did that great and good man, Judge A. E. Saltee, say in regard to bonds when they wanted to vote bonds to build our court-house? "He said he would die before he would suffer such a calamity to fall on the people." What about Judge Saltee? Everybody knows that there never lived or died a better man, honest, upright, fearless friend to everybody. To know him was to love him, and Adair county never produced a more loyal son and no other county ever produced a better judge. What did the Hatcher correspondent in his last letter say about bonds? He said: "Dear editor, if the rest of my letter goes to the waste basket please publish these few lines which were as follows: 'Never bond your county for anything.' Now Hatcher is located in Taylor county and this was penned from a man that had tried the bond business and had seen the calamity that befell his county so he warned his sister county, Adair, not to suffer such calamity to fall on her. The Adair County News says: 'that unfortunately Taylor county failed to hold her interest at par in the enterprise and became a victim of circumstances.' Such might be the way if Adair should be gulled into bonding herself, and I should think it would be a sorrowful epitaph to be placed on the grave stone of old Adair county.

"Unfortunately a victim of circumstances." Now fellow citizens study the situation closely yourselves and help put an epitaph on old Adair county to read like this:

"We have met the enemy and they are ours."

I have accepted the agency for J. R. Watkins Medical Co., in this county, and will make a home to home canvass. You will find these goods at any time at J. F. Patterson's store Columbia. I will be on the square the first day of every court. These goods need no recommendation as they have been tried by the people of this county and have given perfect satisfaction. Call at the above named store if you should need any of these goods before I call on you. These goods can also be found at D. M. Moore's, at Garlin.

An Incident of the War.

In 1863 the 17th Michigan regiment was camped on Mr. J. M. Russell's farm near Columbia, and in one of the companies was a young soldier about twenty years of age, named William H. Russell. His name being the same as the owner of the property upon whose land he was camping, friendly relations were soon brought about and the young soldier became a frequent visitor to the Russell home and was treated almost like one of the family. He had elegant manners and his conduct showed that he was a born gentleman. Mr. Russell's children were all at home at this time, excepting Joseph, who was in the army, and the entire family took a great interest in the young soldier, often having him call and take meals.

One day an order came directing the regiment to move. Before leaving young Russell, the soldier, wrote a letter to the family, expressing his gratitude for the kind treatment he had received in the hospitable home. The letter was preserved by Miss Kate Russell, who died a few months ago, and which was found in her effects.

The letter was so well written that Mr. J. O. Russell became anxious to know if the soldier boy of 1863 was yet living. He wrote to the pension department Washington, D. C., and learned that Wm. H. Russell was on the list and was living in Omaha, Neb. A letter was at once forwarded to his address, and in due time an answer came, showing that he was the same person who was here on the date given above. He repeated how well he was treated in the Russell home here, and expressed a desire to see the living members of the family. He is now 70 years old; has raised a family, one son being a prominent lawyer in the City of New York.

Mr. J. O. Russell thinks he will be in Omaha some time this year, and will make it convenient to see the friend he knew when he was only seven years old.

Mr. Walter O. Burke, a young merchant, and Miss Mabel Yates, daughter of Mr. J. Cager Yates, accompanied by relatives and friends, left Bradfordsville in an automobile, drove to Louisville, where they were married by Dr. E. L. Powell, of the Christian Church. The occurrence took place one day last week and we presume the couple have returned to their home, Bradfordsville.

Barn Burned.

Last Thursday night, about 9 o'clock a large barn which was the property of J. H. Young, located on his Butler farm, was consumed by fire. It contained three hundred barrels of corn, three acres of tobacco, a lot of hay and some farming implements. It is our understanding that there was no insurance and the loss is estimated at $1,500. Origin of the fire unknown.

Hogs are not all out of Adair yet. Several droves passed through town last week, bought in various sections of the county. The scarest thing in the way of stock is young, fat beef cattle.

The Cause of Rheumatism

Stomach trouble, lazy liver and deranged kidneys are the cause of rheumatism. Get your stomach, liver kidneys and bowels in a healthy condition by taking Electric Bitters, and you will not be troubled with the pains of rheumatism. Charles B. Allen, a school principal of Sylvania, Ga., who suffered indescribable torture from rheumatism, liver and stomach trouble and diseased kidneys, writes: "All remedies failed until I used Electric Bitters, but four bottles of this wonderful remedy cured me completely." May be your rheumatic pains come from stomach, liver or kidney troubles. Electric Bitters will give you prompt relief. 50c and $1. Recommended by Paull Drug Co.

RESOLUTIONS

The following resolutions were adopted by the Progressive Republicans of Adair county at their mass meeting at the court-house, Monday, March 3rd:

We the members of the Progressive party in Adair county, in mass meeting assembled in Columbia, Ky., on March 3rd, 1913, resolve as follows:

1st. That we approve the call of this meeting, believing that the time has come for the party in this county to decide upon its course of action.

2nd. That our faith in the wisdom of the founders and in the principles of the party are strengthened each day, as we observe with what eagerness each of the old parties is trying to copy some tenet of our platform.

3rd. That we reaffirm our faith in the ability of the American people to rule themselves, and though venerating the Constitution of the United States and acknowledging the apparent superhuman wisdom of its authors we regard it only as a guarantee to us of the right to rule ourselves and enact into law the wishes of the majority, not to be nullified later by the vote power or judicial decision prompted by avarice or political expediency, charging unconstitutionality, a subterfuge to make it our master instead of a servant, subverting the intention of its framers, who intended it to be our guardian of liberty and not despotic ruler.

4th. That we believe in the golden rule applied in politics as well as religion, that in our zeal we would not forget the rights of the poor and down trodden of the earth, that we would give the same power to the vote of the sane but uneducated as to the vote of a Rockefeller or a Morgan. That there is in this country no class who should on account of the superior wisdom or financial prowess be allowed the right to annul the wishes of the majority.

5th. That we feel and claim to be the true successors to the principles of Lincoln, Grant, McKinley and Roosevelt. That by gross frauds we have been deprived of the party name and made to enlist in the cause of good government under another banner, but that the principles for which we stand are our inalienable right and we exist today for the purpose of perpetuating these principles.

6th. That in view of the fact that these principles must be kept alive, and considering the impossibility of the old parties ever to command the respect and confidence of a majority of the American people, we feel it incumbent upon the Progressive party to nominate at the August primary, a candidate for every office, State and County, to be voted for at the November election.

7th. That whereas ours is a party of the people, without regard to past party affiliation, race, creed or color, we welcome to our ranks all persons who believe in "the Square Deal" and the Ten Commandments, especially the one that says: "Thou Shalt Not Steal."

8th. That if the American people had been allowed full and free expression of their choice in the Republican conventions and primaries held in the spring of 1912, and the delegates properly and rightly elected had been accorded their rights in the Chicago convention last June, that Theodore Roosevelt would be inaugurated President tomorrow instead of Woodrow Wilson.

Baled hay. Good, any quantity, delivered to you. Phone J. W. Walker, Columbia, Ky.

Mr. Samuel H. Newbold has sold his farm in this county, five miles from Columbia, known as the Wallace Miller place, to J. O. Humphress. We failed to learn the consideration. Mr. Humphress has been in the Canal Zone for several years, but sometime in the near future he will take charge of the farm.

R. K. & L. M. Young were in the Stanford market last week with 200 head of cattle.

Death of an Estimable Lady.

Last Monday morning, at 6 o'clock, Mrs. Mary J. Taylor, wife of Matthew Taylor, Glenville, succumbed to the inevitable and passed through the vale.

Mrs. Taylor was about 75 years old, a fine lady one who had the respect of every body, old and young, in her neighborhood, and her death is a serious blow to the town of Glenville, as she was a kind and sympathizing neighbor, ever ready to wait upon the sick, a devoted wife and dearly loved by her children. Her husband, who is one of the best known men in Adair county, having been School Superintendent and filled other positions of trust; has the sympathy of the county in this the saddest time of his life.

Mrs. Taylor was a true Christian woman and was ready for the summons. The funeral was largely attended and there were many flowers.

Besides the husband she left a number of children, all grown. May the balm of Gilead comfort their bleeding hearts is the wish of this paper.

I keep on hands a full stock of coffins and caskets, also robes; hearses. Prompt service night or day. Phone 29. 45-1 yr J. F. Triptlett, Columbia, Ky.

An Old Citizen Dies at Nell.

Mr. J. R. Bell, who was one of the oldest citizens of the Nell community, died at his home last Monday morning about 5 o'clock, a victim of paralysis. He was about seventy-three years old and had resided in the community where he died all his life. He was a soldier in the Confederate army, serving gallantly. Mr. Bell lost his wife, who was the oldest child of W. L. Walker, deceased, twenty years ago. He was a man who had many friends and will be greatly missed. His funeral and burial was largely attended.

We are receiving our entire spring stock. Watch this paper for formal "Opening" notice next week. Russell & Co.

We learn from Mr. Cyrus William that Lewis Young will reach home, from the infirmary, some time in this month. His friends will be glad to learn that he is now walking straight, but his limbs are weak and he makes slow progress. It will require time for him to step rapidly, but he hopes to reach that condition of strength in a few months. From all accounts it was a great operation, and it was certainly performed on a very worthy young man.

Peafowls Wanted.

Here is an evidence of how miserably bad the roads are: A wagoner, who lives at Gadberry, was at Sam Lewis' commission house last Thursday for goods going to merchants at his place. He asked the number of pounds and was told twelve hundred. "I can't haul it all," said he, "the roads are too bad." Think of it! Two good horses overloaded with 1,200 pounds.

All notes and accounts are now due and I need the money. Please come settle at once. It will save you a damn or statement.

Church going people were divided last Sunday, there being preaching at three churches. Representative audiences attended all three places. The Christian church is undergoing repairs and Eld. Williams preached at the Baptist church.

Sad Death at Knifley.

Last Saturday night, at 12 o'clock, Mrs. Flosie Dunbar, who was the beloved wife of Mr. J. V. Dunbar, a prominent merchant at Knifley, this county, passed over the river of death. The deceased was only twenty-one years old, but she had been a victim of consumption for more than a year. She was a lady who possessed many noble traits of character and had many friends in the neighborhood where she was born and reared. She was a daughter of John Hendrickson, who in his life time, was a prominent farmer of the Knifley country.

The remains of Mrs. Dunbar were brought to the home of Mr. T. P. Dunbar, who lives three miles from Columbia and there interred in the family burying ground. There were many relatives and friends present. The floral offerings were beautiful.

Besides the sorrowing husband, the deceased left two little sons. May God comfort all those who have been bereaved by this sad and lamentable death.

Buggy wheels painted and put on buggy, price $9.00. Come get them while they last.

To Prevent Washouts.

For some time the heavy rains have been damaging the square, causing many washouts. In order to prevent the overflow of water, the City Council has ordered tiling put down and the work is about completed. It was superintended by City Attorney L. C. Winfrey, who took special pains in seeing that the work was done right. It is hoped that the difficulty has been solved—tiling down sufficient to convey the water from the public square, and that fresh gravel will now be placed thereon.

By reference to our announcement column the names of a number of county candidates, now before the voters, can be seen. There are other candidates who will announce later, and by the time they are all in the list will be quite lengthy. Besides the Democrats, we understand that a number of Progressive Republicans will announce. Everything looks favorable for a lively campaign during the latter part of spring and summer.

We want to suggest to our many correspondents the line upon which we would be glad if they would write: In the first place we want the news of the neighborhood, such as serious illness, marriages, accidents and deaths, and timely suggestions about farming. Where you have visitors, coming from a distance, to your community, give their names and location, but we do not want neighborhood visits. Make your letters interesting and they will be gladly received and read.

There has been an epidemic of measles and mumps in Columbia for the past two weeks, but we are glad to state that many of the patients have recovered, and by the end of this week it is believed that the disease will have been stamped out. Pupils at the Lindsey-Wilson who became victims are about recovered and many of them have returned to books.

INAUGURAL ADDRESS DELIVERED BY THE NEW PRESIDENT.

Washington, March 4.—President Wilson's inaugural address, remarkable for its brevity, was listened to with the greatest interest by the vast throng which was gathered in front of the capitol's east portico, and at its close there was heard nothing but praise for its eloquence and high moral tone. The address in full was as follows:

"There has been a change of government. It began two years ago, when the house of representatives became Democratic by a decisive majority. It has now been completed. The senate about to assemble will also be Democratic. The office of President and Vice-President have been put into the hands of Democrats. What does the change mean? That is the question that is uppermost in our minds to-day. That is the question I am going to try to answer, in order, if I may, to interpret the occasion.

PURPOSE OF THE NATION.

It means much more than the mere success of a party. The success of a party means little except when the nation is using that party for a large and definite purpose. No one can mistake the purpose for which the nation now seeks to use the Democratic party. It seeks to use it to interpret a change in its own plans and point of view. Some old things with which we had grown familiar, and which had begun to creep into the very habit of our thought and of our lives, have altered their aspect as we have latterly looked critically upon them, with fresh, awakened eyes; have dropped their disguise and shown themselves alien and sinister. Some new things, as we look frankly upon them, willing to comprehend their real character, have come to assume the aspect of things long believed in and familiar, stuff of our own convictions. We have been refreshed by a new insight into our own life.

We see that in many things that life is very great. It is incomparably great in its material aspects, in its body of wealth, in the diversity and sweep of its energy, in the industries which have been conceived and built up by the genius of individual men and the limitless enterprise of groups of men. It is great, also, very great, in its moral force. Nowhere else in the world have noble men and women exhibited in more striking form the beauty and energy of sympathy and helpfulness and counsel in their efforts to ratify wrong, alleviate suffering, and set the weak in the way of strength and hope. We have built up, moreover, a great system of government, which has stood through a long age as in many respects a model for those who seek to set liberty upon foundations that will endure against fortuitous change, against storm and accident. Our life contains every great thing, and contains it in rich abundance.

EVILS THAT HAVE COME.

But the evil has come with the good, and much fine gold has been corroded. With riches has come inexcusable waste. We have squandered a great part of what we might have used, and have not stopped to conserve the exceeding bounty of nature, without which our genius for enterprise would have been worthless and impotent, scorning to be careful, shamefully prodigal as well as admirably efficient. We have been proud of our industrial achievements, but we have not hitherto stopped thoughtfully enough to count the human cost the cost of lives snuffed out, of energies overtaxed and broken, the fearful physical and spiritual cost to the men and women and children upon whom the dead weight and burden of it all has fallen pitilessly the years through. The groans and agony of it all had not yet reached our ears, the solemn, moving undertone of our life, coming up out of the mines and factories and out of every home where the struggle had its intimate and familiar seat. With the great government went many deep secret things which we too long delayed to look into and scrutinize with candid, fearless eyes. The great government we loved has too often been made use of for private and selfish purposes, and those who used it had forgotten the people.

At last a vision has been vouchsafed us of our life as a whole. We use the bad with the good, the debased and decadent with the sound and vital. With this vision we approach new affairs. Our duty is to cleanse, to reconsider, to restore, to correct the evil without impairing the good, to purify and humanize every process of our common life without weakening or sentimentalizing it. There has been something crude and heartless and unfeeling in our haste to succeed and be great. Our thought has been 'Let every man look out for himself, let every generation look out for itself,' while we reared giant machinery which made it impossible that any but those who stood at the levers of control should have a chance to look out for themselves. We had not forgotten our morals. We remembered well enough that we had set up a policy which was meant to serve the humblest as well as the most powerful, with an eye single to the standards of justice and fair play, and remembered it with pride. But we were very heedless and in a hurry to be great.

THINGS TO BE ALTERED.

We have come now to the sober second thought. The scales of heedlessness have fallen from our eyes. We have made up our minds to square every process of our national life again with the standards we so proudly set up at the beginning and have always carried at our hearts. Our work is a work of restoration.

We have itemized with some degree of particularity the things ought to be altered and here are some of the chief items: A tariff which cuts us off from our proper part in the commerce of the world, violates the just principles of taxation, and makes the government a facile instrument in the hands of private interests; a banking and currency system based upon the necessity of the government to sell its bonds fifty years ago and perfectly adapted to concentrating cash and restricting credits; an industrial system which, take it on all its sides, financial as well as administrative, holds capital in leading strings, restricts the liberties and limits the opportunities of labor, and exploits without renewing or conserving the natural resources of the country; a body of agricultural activities never yet given the efficiency of great business undertakings or served as it should be through the instrumentalities of science taken directly to the farm, or afforded the facilities of credit best suited to its practical needs; water courses undeveloped, waste places unreclaimed, forests untended, fast disappearing without plan or prospect of renewal, unregarded waste heaps at every mine. We have studied as perhaps no other nation has the most effective means of production, but we have not studied cost or economy as we should either as organizers of industry, as statesmen, or as individuals.

GOVERNMENT FOR HUMANITY

Nor have we studied and perfected the means by which government may be put at the service of humanity, in safeguarding the health of the nation, the health of its men and its women and its children, as well as their rights in the struggle for existence. This is no sentimental duty. The firm basis of government is justice, not pity. These are matters of justice. There can be no equality or opportunity, the first essential of justice in the body politic, if men and women and children be not shielded in their lives, their very vitality, from the consequences of great industrial and social processes which they can not alter, control, or singly cope with. Society must see to it that it does not itself crush or weaken or damage its own constituent parts. The first duty of law is to keep sound the society it serves. Sanitary laws, pure food laws, and laws determining conditions of labor which individuals are powerless to determine for themselves are intimate parts of the very business of justice and legal efficiency.

These are some of the things we ought to do, and not leave the others undone, the old-fashioned, never-to-be-neglected, fundamental safeguarding of property and of individual right. This is the high enterprise of the new day; to lift everything that concerns our life as a nation to the light that shines from the hearthfires of every man's conscience and vision of the right. It is inconceivable that we should do this as partisans; it is inconceivable we should do it in ignorance of the facts as they are or in blind haste. We shall restore, not destroy. We shall deal with our economic system as it is and as it may be modified, not as it might be if we had a clean sheet of paper to write upon; and step by step we shall make it what it should be, in the spirit of those who question their own wisdom and seek counsel and knowledge, not shallow self-satisfaction or the excitement of excursions whither they cannot tell. Justice, and only justice, shall always be our motto.

NATION DEEPLY STIRRED.

And yet it will be no cool process of mere science. The nation has been deeply stirred by a solemn passion, stirred by the knowledge of wrong, of ideals lost, of government too often debauched and made an instrument of evil. The feelings with which we face this new age of right and opportunity sweep across our heart-strings like some air out of God's own presence, where justice and mercy are reconciled and the judge and the brother are one. We know our task to be no mere task of politics but a task which shall search us through and through, whether we be able to understand our time and the need of our people, whether we be indeed their spokesmen and interpreters, whether we have the pure heart to comprehend and the rectified will to choose our high course of action.

This is not a day of triumph; it is a day of dedication. Here muster, not the forces of party, but the forces of humanity. Men's hearts wait upon us; men's lives hang in the balance; men's hopes call upon us to say what we will do. Who shall live up to the great trust? Who dares fail to try? I summon all men, all patriotic, all forward-looking men, to my side. God helping me, I will not fail them if they will but counsel and sustain me!"

The Forty Year Test

An article must have exceptional merit to survive for a period of forty years. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy was first offered to the public in 1872. From a small beginning it has grown in favor and popularity until it has attained a world wide reputation. You will find nothing better for a cough or cold. Try it and you will understand why it is a favorite after a period of more than forty years. It not only gives relief—it cures. For sale by Tauli Drug Co.

Mrs. Rutha Bryant's condition remains about the same.

Chronic Stomach Trouble Cured.

There is nothing more discouraging than a chronic disorder of the stomach. Is it not surprising that many suffer for years with such an ailment when a permanent cure is within their reach and may be had for a trifle? "About one year ago, 'I bought a package of Chamberlain's Tablets, and since using them I have felt perfectly well. I had previously used any number of different medicines, but none of them were of any lasting benefit.' For sale by Pauli Drug Co.

The death of Mr. J. D. Walker was received at this place with sadness, this being his old home.

Courts to Decide on Confederate Pensions.

The poor old Confederates are having a hard time getting the small pension of $10 a month voted them by the last Legislature. The act provides a residence in the State of at least five years, a year's service in the war between the States, or until the close of the war, precludes a pension to veterans worth as much as $2,500 in property, or an income of $300 a year, and those with wives able to support them, or are themselves capable of making a living. It takes much time and considerable expense to prove up a claim, as the facts are not always easily procurable.

Up to this time nothing has been paid on them, as there is no money in the treasury available for the purpose, and it looks now like they will be held up by the slow processes of the courts. The bonding companies, which make Auditor Bosworth's bond, have raised the question of validity of the claims, and that official has referred it to Attorney General Garnett, who will, of course, pass the question up to the courts for final adjudication.

There are several provisions in the constitution which seem to be against the pension law, but this one is relied on by the objectors. The Bill of Rights provides: "that no grant of exclusive separate public emoluments or privileges shall be made to any man or set of men except in consideration of public service." In States which have granted pensions to the Confederate veterans where a similar constitutional provision exists, the question has been settled in favor of the old soldiers. But the question is different in Kentucky. The States to secede from the Union and were a part of the Confederacy. Military service for the States, whereas Kentucky did not secede and Confederate service may not be regarded as the service necessary to overcome the constitutional prohibition.

There are also other sections in the basic law which some think will conflict with the Legislative enactment, especially that which prohibits class legislation. It may, therefore, be a long time hence before the poor old fellows get their pittance that a grateful and sympathetic people desire they should enjoy. Many of them are in need of the necessities of life, and it is a shame that they should be denied a decent support, when the government is so liberal with those who responded to the call of arms. It is to be hoped that the question can be satisfactorily settled and the veterans of the lost cause receive their just due. —Richmond Climax.

Best Known Cough Remedy

For forty-three years Dr. King's New Discovery has been known throughout the world as the most reliable cough remedy. Over three million bottles were used last year. Isn't this proof? It will get rid of your cough, or we will refund your money. J. J. Owens, of Allendale, S. C., writes the way others have done: "After twenty years, I find that Dr. King's New Discovery is the best remedy for coughs or colds that I have ever used. For coughs or colds and all throat and lung troubles, it has no equal. 50c and $1 at Paull Drug Co."

Review of New President's Career.

Born, at Staunton, Va., December 28th, 1856, the son of Rev. Joseph R. and Mrs. Jessie Woodrow Wilson.

Passed his boyhood in the South, residing at Augusta, Ga., Columbia, S. C., and Wilmington, N. C., where his father occupied pulpits.

Entered Princeton College in 1879, and was graduated with high honors four years later.

Entered the law department of the University of Virginia in the fall of 1879 and received his diploma in 1881.

Opened a law office in Atlanta in May, 1882, and continued to practice his profession there for eighteen months.

Married June 24, 1885, to Miss Helen Louis Axson, of Savannah, and later in the same year became professor of history and political economy at Bryn Mawr.

Remained at Bryn Mawr three years, when he resigned to accept a similar professorship at Wesleyan University.

Published his first book in 1885 on "Congressional Government," which made for him a name as a scholar and thinker on political questions.

His next book, "The State," published in 1889, was the first work in English to present the subject to the operations of all constitutional Governments.

Resigned his chair at Wesleyan in 1890 to become professor of jurisprudence and politics at Princeton University.

In 1893 "Division and Reunion," "An Old Master and Other Political Essays" and "Mere Literature and Other Essays" came from his pen.

In 1896, the publication of "George Washington" added to his reputation as a writer and historian.

Elected president of Princeton University, in 1902, to succeed Dr. Francis L. Patton.

In 1902 published a "History of the People of the United States," said to be the first important work of its kind written by a Southerner.

Named by the Democratic party for Governor of New Jersey in 1910, elected in November of that year, and inaugurated January 17, 1911.

In the autumn of 1911 his name was first prominently connected with the Presidential nomination.

After a hard fight in the primaries he was nominated by the Democratic party for President at Baltimore, July 2, 1912.

Officially notified of the nomination at his summer home at Seagirt, N. J., August 7, 1912.

Elected twenty-eighth President of the United States, November 5, 1912, receiving 435 electoral votes out of a total of 531.

Resigned the Governorship of New Jersey, March 1, 1913, in anticipation of his inauguration as President.

Left Trenton for Washington, March 3, 1913, escorted by practically the entire student body of Princeton University.

Inaugurated President of the United States, March 4, 1913, the first Democrat to hold the office in sixteen years.

How a Drunkard Cured Himself.

The American Magazine has been offering prizes for the best letters on the subject "Overcoming Bad Habits." The following letter from a man who cured himself from drunkenness won second prize. It is published in the March number.

"Seventeen years I had the drink habit; eight, the drink habit had me.

"If during the last six years of that quarter-century I was sober once, I do not remember it. Day by day, I added to the strength of my weakness until the disease—and disease it had in truth become—brought me, nerve-racked, unstrung, broken, palsied, to the verge of delirium and disgraceful death.

"Then, when without brandy, I could not lift food or drink to my lips. I took the fog end of a misspent life that remained, and made a man of it.

"How? Not day by day, hour by hour, as the habit grew; but instant by instant: with every instant a poignant agony of body and soul. Moment by moment, postponed the drinking of the brandy carried in my pocket though every moment of those first days was a suffering such as I trust may never again fall to my lot. Every fibre of my being, distressed, screamed out Brandy! Brandy! If ever you needed it, you need it now 'Not yet. In a second or two, perhaps, but not yet."

"Many times during that first terrible day, and the scarcely less dreadful days that followed, I asked myself if I could live another hour—a half-hour—fifteen minutes—without brandy. I did not know. A second? Perhaps. I was not sure. My heart fluttered; beat fast; beat slow; threatened to stop, and several times, did stop—or so it seemed to me—for more than a minute, while I grew cold and numb, and broke out in clammy sweat at every pore. Time and again I felt myself on the very threshold of death. Flesh and blood, I thought then, surely could endure no more, and life persist.

"At last, weakening, as I now marvel that I did not weaken sooner, I drew forth the flask that seemed to hold my only hope of life; opened it: with two hands, shakily raised it to my lips.

"Then came the thought, 'If I must die of brandy, I can die without more; if not I can live without any.' And again I said, 'Not yet. In another moment, may be; but not yet.'

"That was six years ago. After the first month, I threw away my flask—and have tasted no intoxicant since.

"My moment-by-moment method was based upon the thought that all of life is measured out in fractions of a second: and that for the brief present fraction that is all the life we have, any torture is endurable.

"The means of instant gratification of the craving were kept at hand as, without such provision, the second-to-second character of the cure is lost and, that lost, nothing remains. With it, and with a determination to succeed, any man, I believe, can control and conquer any habit."

Are you Constipated?

If so, get a box of Dr. King's New Life Pills, take them regularly and your trouble will quickly disappear. They will stimulate the liver, improve your digestion and get rid of all the poisons from your system. They will surely get you well again. 25c at Paull Drug Co.

BIRTH OF COLONEL BOGY.

Origin of the Term That Has Become a Part of Golf.

"Who is Colonel Boggy?" That is the first question usually asked by the recruit when he steps on the golf links. Professionals and veterans never tire of explaining that he is the imaginary opponent, with the fixed score for each hole, but few can tell how the name originated.

It generally is accepted that an Englishman was first to set forth the idea. In December, 1890, the scratch score of the Coventry course was taken, being the score that a good scratch player would take to each hole of the grounds, making no mistakes, but also faking nothing nor being fortunate with any special flashes of brilliant play.

At the time they called this "the ground score," and later several tournaments were given under the system. The name, however, followed soon, and its origin was a curious one. Dr. Thomas Browne, R. N., went out to play against a friend, Major Charles A. Wellman, and they agreed instead of playing directly against each other to play against the ground score and decide their match accordingly as each fared in this way. It so happened that about the same time the boggy song was being sung by the late E. J. Lonnen at the London Gaiety theater, and everybody else was singing it. The words of the refrain were:

Hush! Hush! Hush!
Here comes the boggy man!
So hide your head beneath the clothes
He'll catch you if he can.

There was the idea in golf. "He'll catch you if he can!" And it flashed across the mind of Major Wellman when he was playing this game and was getting "caught" by the ground score. "Why," said he to his friend Browne, "this player of yours is a regular 'boggy' man." A considerable piece of golf history was made in that chance remark, for "boggy" was from that moment established in golf. Some time later "colonel" was added.—Exchange.

A WALRUS ON LAND.

The Awkward and Bulky Creature Is Almost Helpless.

As might be expected, a walrus is about as helpless on land as a canal boat. It is with no little difficulty and much hitching and floundering that he drags his huge bulk upon a sandy shore even with the boosting he gets from behind by the breakers as they roll in and dash against him.

His hind flippers are of little use on land, and on sand or pebbles, where his front flippers do not hold well, the labor of floundering forward is so great that he never stirs beyond the edge of the water and usually lies with his body half awash, with the salt spray dashing over him like torrents of rain. On solid rock or ice he gets along much better, and often a herd will spread several rods back from the water's edge.

The females and younger walruses have far less development of neck to lumber them and therefore enjoy more freedom of motion than the males, who actually seem a great burden to themselves. These creatures are strictly social in their habits and always go in herds, whether travelling, feeding, fighting or resting ashore. In the days before the slaughter of all living creatures became a ruling passion in the breast of man the Pacific species inhabited the whole of Bering sea and strait in herds which often contained thousands and even tens of thousands of individuals.

Gave Himself Away.

A man who is steadily employed finally had a day off and decided to go fishing, taking his luncheon with him. When he reached the creek he discovered that he had dropped the lunch packet somewhere on the road and hastened back to look for it. Presently he met a hnsky negro, who was looking happy and picking his teeth.

"Did you find anything on the road as you came along?" asked the gentleman.

"No, sah," answered the negro. "I didn't find nothing. Couldn't a dog have found it and eat it up?"—Everybody's.

Cleopatra's Pearl.

Most persons know the story that is told of Cleopatra to illustrate her luxurious habits of living—that she dissolved in her wine a precious pearl. No one seems yet to have questioned what must have been the effect upon the drink, but scientists scoff at the possibility of such solution. The fact is pearls are not soluble in wine. The most powerful vinegar affects them slowly and never entirely dissolves them, for the organic matter remains behind in the shape of a spongy mass that is larger than the original pearl.—New York Press.

THE PASTOR SPRINTED.

He Made a Good Run in Record Time With Plenty of Reason.

One of the traditional stories of the town of Fairfield, Conn., recounts a wild dash from the pulpit made by a worthy and beloved pastor of the Episcopal dock, Dr. Labaree.

It was on a Sunday more than a hundred years ago. The service had been read, the prayers said, the hymns sung, and the parson began his sermon. As he proceeded his gestures became very energetic. He brought his right hand down with great force. Then he turned pale, cleared the pulpit stairs at a bound, dashed out of the church door and ran toward the pond a short distance away.

The congregation followed in bewildered pursuit and saw their venerable pastor with flying robe rush into the water until it came to his neck. Then, turning round, he faced his astonished audience and said:

"Dear beloved brethren, I am not crazy, as no doubt many of you think, but yesterday at the drug store I bought a bottle of nitric acid and carelessly left it in my pocket today.

"My last gesture broke the bottle. I knew the suffering the acid would cause when it penetrated my clothing and rushed for the water to save myself pain."

He drew several pieces of glass from his pocket in witness of the tale. Then he dismissed the company and hurried home.

FROZEN WITH HEAT.

A Remarkable Process Known as the Caloric Paradox.

Freezing is usually associated with cold, but water can be frozen on a red-hot plate. This pretty experiment has rightly been called the caloric paradox. If a drop of water is placed on a red-hot or white hot metal plate it does not suddenly flash into steam under the influence of the great heat. It does not even boil. It simply evaporates quietly and slowly as it rolls about the plate. Now, suppose that the drop on the plate is a volatile liquid like sulphurous acid. It will evaporate, and this evaporation will produce cold. Let a drop of water fall in the sulphurous acid drop and it will be frozen in spite of the heat.

M. Boutigny thus froze water on a white hot platinum capsule. Faraday carried this remarkable experiment even further. Pouring some ether and solidified carbonic acid gas on a red-hot platinum capsule, he formed a spheroidal mass which evaporated very slowly. He then brought some mercury into contact with it, and this was instantly frozen. Now, mercury requires a temperature of 40 degrees below zero to solidify it, and here it was frozen on red-hot platinum.

No "Deadhead" Trip.

One of the most famous of American shipping lines in the early days of our marine was the Cope line, which ran between Philadelphia and Liverpool, says the author of "Memoirs of Charles H. Cramp." By this line John Randolph of Roanoke determined to go to Russia when he had been appointed minister to that country by President Jackson. Entering the office of the company in Philadelphia, he said to a clerk in his usual grandiloquent manner:

"Sir, I wish to see Thomas P. Cope."

He was shown to Mr. Cope's office.

"I am John Randolph of Roanoke," he said. "I wish to take passage to Liverpool in one of your ships."

If he expected to be tendered a pass he was grievously disappointed.

"I am Thomas Cope," replied the head of the line. "If thee goes aboard the ship and select thy stateroom and will pay $150 thee may go."

An Ants' Sewing Circle.

A party of German naturalists recently returned from Ceylon have reported the existence of a species of ant that has been observed in the act of sewing two leaves together for the purpose of forming a nest. This report confirms the observations of the English naturalist Ridley, made in 1890. They saw a row of the insects pulling the edges of leaves together, then others trimming and fitting the edges, and finally the completion of the work by still other ants which fastened the edges with a silky thread yielded by larvae of the same species the workers carried in their mandibles. It is said that the sewing ants pass the thread-giving larvae like shuttles through holes in the edges of the leaves.—Boston Post.

For the Boy's Sake.

A Roseville man stopped smoking for the sake of his young son. "If I smoke I shall set him a bad example," he argued and gave up tobacco with many sighs of regret. For three years he has done without the weed. The other night he found a box of little cigars in the boy's coat pocket, a well smoked briar pipe in the youngster's tool box down cellar and a pack of cigarettes in the woodshed.—Newark News.

His Experience.

"In order to succeed in any line of business," said the great merchant, who was given to the habit of moralizing, "one must begin at the bottom."

"I tried that," replied the young man with the fringed trousers, "and now I'm on my uppers."—Exchange.

THE ADAIR COUNTY NEWS

Published Every Wednesday

Adair County News Company.
(INCORPORATED.)

CHAS. S. HARRIS EDITOR.

Democratic newspaper devoted to the interest of the City of Columbia and the people of Adair and adjacent counties.

Entered at the Columbia Post-office as second class mail matter.

WED. MARCH 12. 1913

It was our pleasure to spend a few hours in Bowling Green last week, and to be plain it was a most pleasant visit, resulting in a broader knowledge of the great work being done in the educational institutions of that city. Just how many schools are within the city limits is unknown to the writer but there are several, and all, we were told, are well filled with students. Those of most importance, however, are The Bowling Green Business College and the State Normal. The former has two or three hundred young men and young ladies industriously pursuing business training under the most thorough instructors in the entire country, and aided by every equipment necessary to develop competent, active and useful men in many of the leading avenues of business. This school is so thoroughly established and widely advertised by the many who have received training in it and accepted positions in various parts of the country, that the demands for their graduates are in excess of the finished product. We were shown through the State Normal buildings by Prof. Cherry, principal of the school and the most enthusiastic educator in the State—a gentleman whose activities have vitalized as well as modernized the power and effectiveness of that great State institution. We were impressed with the apparent fitness and ability of the heads of the various departments, but the adaptation of the President to the general purpose and accomplishments of the States great purpose in establishing such a training school stands a signal success. The immensity of the buildings and equipments, the breadth of its work and the clock-like system employed, are bound to appeal to the pride and endorsement of every enterprising Kentuckian who may visit this school. On the topmost story, where the air is fresh and light abundant, Dr. McCormick, the head of the State Board of Health, is located, and while the writer is not versed in the scope of his work, or the equipments necessary, yet it appears that under his superintendency a vast amount of good is being accomplished. The Doctor is a most entertaining gentleman, and seems not only proud of past achievements, but looks for and expects, greater revelations in the future. The critic may employ his arts to cast shadows over the endeavors of this department, and there may be just ground for some criticism, but beyond doubt much good is being accomplished in this field of science. Last but not least, it was our pleasure to meet many of Adair and adjoining county's teachers, who are in attendance, working hard to better equip themselves for their profession. For the purpose of extending good will to the editor of The News, the President of the Adair County Club called a meeting of its members, there being more than thirty. A few brief speeches, an all around handshake, a good-bye and we were gone feeling glad of our good fortune to meet so many of our worthy teachers and friends.

THE announcement of Mr. Jo Z. Conover for the nomination for Jailer of Adair county subject to the action of the Progressive party, in the August primary, appears in the proper column in this paper. Mr. Conover is well and favorably known to a large number of people in this county. For the last four years he has been deputy Jailer under his father, Mr. J. K. P. Conover. In his official capacity he has measured up to full and complete requirements, and so far as we have been able to learn he enjoys the good will of the best people of this county and as truly the esteem of the unfortunate who have been placed under his care. As to his qualifications and special fitness to make a good Jailer, we have nothing to add to his record, as it is as good as any man's who has filled that office in this county. As a Progressive he was one of the first to align with that party and from start to the present has never faltered in his honest convictions which place his new political alignment. As a good citizen, as a man who has discharged the duties of Jailer for nearly four years, and as a Progressive who believes in the policies that necessitated his political change, he submits his claims to the Progressives of Adair county in the August primary.

In the proper column in this issue will be found the announcement of Mr. J. W. Vaughan, a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Jailer of Adair county, subject to the action of the August primary. Mr. Vaughan lives in the Glenville vicinity, and is an active, industrious farmer. Attending to his farm has prevented him from having as broad acquaintance as some other citizens, but throughout the Southern part of the county he enjoys the good will of its many good citizens who will not falter in their opportunity to help give him the nomination. Mr. Vaughan is a Democrat, one from principle, and has always done his duty by party and party candidates, though not offensive to his Republican friends. His standing as a gentleman, his attentiveness to duty and his integrity recommend him as a man who would make a good official. This is the first time he has ever asked office at the hands of his party and while he will neither sulk nor sullen should the victory be won by an opponent, yet he thinks he is entitled to due consideration, and will try to meet as many Democrats as possible before the August primary and submit his claims personally.

WILSON'S CABINET.

Secretary of State—William Jennings Bryan, of Nebraska.
Secretary of Treasury—William G. McAdoo, of New York.
Secretary of War—Lindley M. Garrison, of New Jersey.
Attorney General—James Mc-

Reynolds, of Tennessee.

Postmaster General—Representative Albert Bursleson, of Texas.

Secretary of the Navy—Josephus Daniels, of North Carolina.

Secretary of the Interior—Franklin K. Lane, of California.

Secretary of Agriculture—David F. Houston, of Missouri.

Secretary of Commerce—Representative William C. Redfield, of New York.

Secretary of Labor—Representative William B. Wilson, of Pennsylvania.

In an opinion handed down by First Assistant Attorney General Morris, doubt is cast on the legality of the Confederate pension act, and the Auditor, Henry Bosworth, is instructed not to pay a claim until ordered to do so by the Courts. This decision makes it evident that it will be a long time before any of the old Confederates will receive a pension, if they ever do. Bills are constantly being declared unconstitutional, which shows conclusively that first-class lawyers should be selected to serve in legislative bodies.

Diplomatic appointments still continue to occupy the center of attention in official Washington. Richard Olney has been decided upon for the ambassadorship to Great Britain and George W. Guthrie, Democratic State Chairman of Pennsylvania, is said to be slated for the ambassadorship to Italy, but while the information comes from reliable authority the arrangements for making the appointments have not reached the stage where definite announcements can be made.

The scramble for offices will now commence. Evidently there will be many changes, and the time to some applicants is going to seem dreadfully long. President Wilson has a task before him, and while we believe Republicans who are now holding fat positions will be superseded by Democrats, the work cannot be done quickly. Applicants will be pushed by their friends, and to select the best and most deserving will require time.

"Pittsburgh Perfect" Fence

Why we use Open Hearth Wire in Preference to all other kinds

Remember the iron wire your father and your grandfather had around the farm? Good old wire, wasn't it?

The Special Open Hearth Wire, as we make it today from our own (secret) formula, is more like the old time iron wire than that used in any other make of fence.

It takes longer to make this special Open Hearth Wire, but it excels in strength, toughness and long life, and consequently makes the most serviceable, satisfactory fence. The wire is the very foundation of fence durability.

Buy "Pittsburgh Perfect" Fence for lasting satisfaction.

Made in Different Styles for FIELD, FARM, RANCH, LAWN, CHICKEN, POULTRY and RABBIT YARD and GARDEN

Every Rod Guaranteed

Ask your dealer for "Pittsburgh Perfect" and insist on his furnishing it. Do not allow him to persuade you that some other fence is just as good. If he doesn't sell it, write us direct.

"Pittsburgh Perfect" Brands of Barbed Wire; Bright, Annealed & Galvanized Wire; Twisted Cable Wire; Hard Spring Coil Wire; Fence Staples; Poultry Netting Staples; Regular Wire Nails; Galvanized Wire Nails; Large Head Roofing Nails; Single Loop Bale Ties; "Pittsburgh Perfect" Fencing. General trade conditions are good, with all lines in demand, say Dun's and Bradstreet's weekly reports of business. Failures for the week ended March 6 were 250 against 287 in the corresponding week in 1912.

In the new Congress Representative Stanley succeeded Ollie James as a member of the Ways and Means Committee. Champ Clark had no opposition for Speaker and South Trimble was re-elected Clerk.

Editor of The News:

The March term of the Casey circuit court, began on Monday March the 3rd, 1913. The docket is rather heavy for the present term, and will probably consume the entire two weeks. Judge Carter, delivered very strong instructions to the Grand Jury. On the docket there are 154 old commonwealth cases, on charges of misdemeanors, and 42 appearances, indictments found at the last term of the court. On the criminal docket there are 20 felony cases 5 of which will likely be tried at the present term.

Mr. F. A. Land, the circuit Clerk, had his work up in fine shape, ready for court, and also the Sheriff, W. T. Brown, had all his papers executed where the parties could be found in the county, and was ready when court convened.

The Equity and ordinary dockets contain about the usual number of cases and doubtless most of them will be disposed of at the present term.

EASIEST Money

Egg money is the easiest and quickest money in the poultry industry. If you are going to make eggs your specialty, you should look well into the matter before purchasing stock or eggs for hatching. Heavy laying strains are not accidents. That quality is bred in the stock. If the "fancy" side of the industry appeals to you, buy stock and eggs bred for the show ring. My strain of

Single Comb White LEGHORNS

Is a combination of the blood lines from three of the largest and most successful egg farms in the United States. They have been bred solely for eggs, and have shown remarkable records during the last two winters. Any old hen will lay in the spring and early summer.

A Remedy No Family Should Do Without

No matter how healthy a human being may be it is safe to say that not many months are passed without some obstruction of the bowels, in other words, constipation, even if only temporary. The bloating, the dull feeling may start after the evening meal. If a laxative is not taken that night it is certain that sleep will not be sound, and you will awaken unrefreshed.

Hence, it is important for you and for all the members of your family that a good, reliable laxative be always kept in the house for just such emergency. It is sure to be needed, and when needed you want it at hand. No family that is careful of its health can do without such a remedy. But the question of which remedy to have on hand is also of vast importance.

The laxative most highly recommended by the majority of intelligent Americans as being best for babies and grownups is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

It is a liquid laxative- tonic, mild, and never gripes, is effective on robust people and can be given with safety to an infant. Children like it because of these gentle qualities and because it is pleasant to the taste.

It is the best all-around remedy you can have in the house for any disorder of the stomach, liver and bowels, and many people like R. H. Morgan, Price, Tenn., and Mrs. H. C. Davidson, Wart- race, Tenn., say they would as soon be without the necessities as without Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

Anyone wishing to make a trial of this remedy before buying it in the regular way of a druggist at fifty cents or one dollar a large bottle (family size) can have a sample bottle sent to the home free of charge by simply addressing Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 405 Washington St., Monticello, Ill. Your name and address on a postal card will do.

GLASS IS PECULIAR.

It Has a Number of Curious and Contradictory Qualities.

Glass is one of the most interesting as well as one of the most peculiar things in the world. It has curious and contradictory qualities, and many astonishing phenomena are connected with it. Brittle and breakable as it is, yet it exceeds almost all other bodies in elasticity.

If two glass balls are made to strike each other at a given force the recoil, by virtue of their elasticity, will be nearly equal to their original impetus. Connected with its brittleness are some very singular facts.

Take a hollow sphere with a hole and stop the hole with the finger, so as to prevent the external and internal air from communicating, and the sphere will fly to pieces by the mere heat of the hand. Vessels made of glass that have been suddenly cooled possess the curious property of being able to resist hard blows given to them from without, but will be instantly shattered by a small particle of flint dropped into their cavities. This property seems to depend upon the comparative thickness of the bottom; the thicker the bottom is the more certainty of breakage by this experiment. Some of these vessels, it is stated, have resisted the stroke of a mallet given with sufficient force to drive a nail into wood, and heavy bodies, such as iron, bits of wood, Jasper, stone, etc., have been cast into them from a height of two or three feet without any effect, yet a fragment of flint not larger than a pea dropped from a height of three inches has made them fly.

ELIZA WAS GENEROUS.

Her Munificent Offer For an Original Five Act Tragedy.

People are likely to look back contentedly upon the past in these days of modern progress. When we hear what the most prolific of present day novelists receives a word and what the weekly royalties of any well known playwrights are we say that the literary profession has come into its own. Some hark back to the contrasting tale—that Milton received only £5 for the first copyright of "Paradise Lost," an epic in twelve books containing a total of 10,565 lines, but that was over two centuries ago. Poe received $10 for "The Raven." That may be dismissed with the statement that poetry never paid.

The modern way of making money by literature is even more recent than is generally thought. Alexander H. of Cincinnati, one of the best known bookmen and collectors of the middle west, has a letter in his collection of autographs that proves this point.

Two generations ago Eliza Logan was a leading actress in America. Read her letter, O budding genius of the typewriter, and be glad that when you are paid it is space rates for the local paper:

Tremont House, Boston, May 17, 1854.
E. Dussault, Jr., Charlestown, Mass.
Sir—I wish an original five act tragedy—the feature to be a heroine, myself the personator of it; the scene not to be laid in this country; the plot to be optional with the author—for which, if I like it, I will pay $5. Respectfully,
ELIZA LOGAN
—Boston Post.

American Leaf Colors.

It has been observed that the leaves of American trees, such as maples, scarlet oaks and so forth, which at home exhibit splendid colors in the autumn, fall below their reputation in this regard when transplanted in England or on the continent of Europe. An English observer, who has been studying the causes of the autumn tints of trees, thinks the superiority of our woodlands arises from the soil and mild yet glowing climatic conditions prevailing here in the fall. England, it is added, is rarely blessed with an Indian summer. When the climatic conditions permit the leaves to retain considerable vitality in the autumn the colored pigment is normally developed; hence the glorious forests of the United States.—Chicago Record Herald.

Regulating Price of Books.

The price of books was once a matter for legislation in England. An act of 1534, which seems never to have been repealed, provides that any complaint regarding the price of books should be considered by "the lord chamberlain, the lord treasurer and the justices or any two of these," and that those dignitaries should have "power and authority to reform and redress the enhancing of the prices of printed books and to limit the prices of the books and the offenders should lose and forfeit for every book by them sold whereof the price be enhanced the sum of 3s. 6d."—London Mail.

She Didn't Do It.

The family jar waxed fiercer. "You talk about my being to blame for our marrying!" shrilly exclaimed Mrs. Vick-Senn. "John Henry, did I hunt you out and then make love to you?" "No!" he snorted. "But you could have given me the glassy eye and sent me about my business, and you didn't do it, madam—you didn't do it!"—Chicago Tribune.

Capital Punishment.

"Mamma, did you love to flirt when you were young?" "I am afraid I did, dear." "And were you ever punished for it, mamma?" "Cruelly, dear. I married your father."—Paris Rite.

The hours we pass with happy prospects in view are more pleasing than those crowned with fruition.—Goldsmith.

The Webb Bill.

The following is a copy of the Webb Liquor Bill, which recently was passed by both the House of Representatives and the Senate. The bill divests liquor of its interstate character where the laws of the State prohibit the sale of intoxicants. The bill reads as follows:

"A bill divesting intoxicating liquors of their interstate character in certain cases.

"Be it enacted, that the shipment or transportation in any manner or by any means whatever of any spirituous, vinous, malted, fermented, or other intoxicating liquor of any kind from one State, Territory or district of the United States or place non-contiguous to but subject to the jurisdiction thereof or from any foreign country into any State, Territory or district noncontiguous to but subject to the jurisdiction thereof, which said spirituous, vinous, malted, fermented or other intoxicating liquor is intended by any person interested therein to be received, possessed, sold or in any manner used either in the original package or otherwise in violation of any law of such State, territory or district of the United States or place noncontiguous to but subject to the jurisdiction thereof, is hereby prohibited."

Don't Suffer!

"I had been troubled, a little, for nearly 7 years," writes Mrs. L. Fincher, in a letter from Peavy, Ala., "but I was not taken down, until March, when I went to bed and had to have a doctor. He did all he could for me, but I got no better. I hurt all over, and I could not rest. At last, I tried Cardui, and soon I began to improve. Now I am in very good health, and able to do all my housework."

TAKE CARDUI The Woman's Tonic

You may wonder why Cardui is so successful, after other remedies have failed. The answer is that Cardui is successful, because it is composed of scientific ingredients, that act curatively on the womanly system. It is a medicine for women, and for women only. It builds, strengthens, and restores weak and ailing women, to health and happiness.

If you suffer like Mrs. Fincher did, take Cardui. It will surely do for you, what it did for her. At all druggists.

Educational Meeting.

Preparations are well under way for the forty-second annual session of the Kentucky Educational Association, to be held in Louisville April 30, May 1, 2 and 3. The officers of the Association are: Supt. R. L. McFarland Owensboro, President; T. W. Vinson, Frankfort, Secretary, and G. M. Money, Shelbyville, Treasurer. It is planned to make it the most important educational meeting ever held in the South. The program is filled with speakers outside the state, of national reputation.

More than a score of the foremost educators of Kentucky are also on the program and it will require three sessions each day to carry through the important work before the convention. Louisville is making elaborate preparations for the entertainment of visitors and the officers of the Association hope that every teacher in the state will attend, as the approaching convention is regarded as an important step for the educational uplift of Kentucky. An exceptionally low railroad rate from every point has been made on account of the convention.

Pickett.

Most of the people who raise tobacco have finished burning plant beds.

Clayton Pickett, of Bliss, was here one day last week.

Mr. Ed Whitlock, of Bliss, bought some shoats from his Bro. Chess, for 5 cents per pound.

Boss Pickett and family and Rollin Pickett and wife, left for Illinois one day last week.

There were several attended 'Squire Geo. W. Pickett's court here one day this week, and he had some business to attend to.

Mr. Will King, the shoe drummer, was here to see our merchants one day this week.

Mr. Tyler Furkins, of Cane Valley, passed through here one day last week, enroute to Keltner.

Mr. Zidner Willis, of Keltner, was here Friday on business.

M. Altom Rodgers has removed to the property known as the Lizzie Moss place, near Kemp.

Mr. Allen Parson, our produce man, makes his regular trip to market once a week.

Mr. Jeff Parsons, of Campbellsville, and Miss Mallie Squires, of Fry, were married in Greensburg a few days ago.

Mr. Dick Rodgers bought one mule and harness from Boss Pickett, for $100.

Mr. Fred Rodgers left for Bowling Green a few days ago, to enter school.

There is still lots of mud in the roads in this section.

A Good Wife.

A good wife is to a man wisdom, strength and courage; a bad one is confusion, weakness and despair. No condition is hopeless to a man whose wife possesses firmness, decision and economy. There is no outward property which can counteract indolence, extravagance and folly at home. No spirit can long endure by influence. Man is strong but his head is not adamant. He needs a tranquil mind, especially if he is an intelligent man with a whole head. He needs a moral force in the conflicts of life. To recover his composure, home should be a place of peace and comfort. There his soul renews its strength and goes forth with renewed vigor to encounter the labors and troubles of life. But if at home he finds no rest and encounters bad temper, jealousy and gloom, hope vanishes and he sinks into despair.

Washington Is Suspicious.

Officials of the Washington administration regard the killing of former President Madero, and former Vice President Saurez as nothing else than premeditated and cold-blooded murder.

Despite the protest of Gen. Huerta that the action was without his foreknowledge and in the face of his promise to make a thorough investigation and punish the perpetrator thereof, the administration here had expressed in an emphatic way its wish that the provisional government, of which Huerta is the head, would treat Madero leniently and not make him the object of summary vengeance.

It is expected that such an expression on the part of this government would be respected and that Madero would be saved from execution. Therefore it was with a shock that the news was received that Madero and his deposed vice president were shot and killed while supposedly under the protection of Huerta's troops and while being transferred from the palace to the penitentiary "for safe keeping."

The assurance given by Huerta that the killing would be made the subject of "judicial investigation" was received with disgust by the highest officials of the administration, inasmuch as none of them believes that the shooting of Madero and Saurez was anything else than culmination of a prearranged plan, of which Huerta was entirely cognizant.

However, it is not the purpose of President Taft to permit the assassination of Madero and Saurez to be made a casus belli with Mexico or to be used as a pretext for an armed invasion of that country. Nevertheless, the defiant disregard of the administration's request that Madero be treated in a civilized way is merely an addition to the long list of grievances the United States will remember and which ultimately will have to be accounted for.

The administration takes the position that it is not up to the United States to protect citizens of the overthrown regime against the cruel and semi-civilized vengeance of their conquerors, much as they deplore this dictatorial and medieval mode of retaliation.

Answer, Bible Students.

Charlie met his friend James upon the street and told him he had been fishing. "How many fish did you catch?" asked James. Charlie replied: "If to the number of books of the Old Testament you add the number of the books in the New Testament, multiply that by the number of Apostles that were present at the Transfiguration, divided by the number of books written by Luke, subtract the times the Israelites marched around Jericho, multiply by the number of pieces of silver Judas received for betraying Christ, divide by the number of spies Moses sent into Canaan, add the number of letters in the name of the city, in which a man climbed up a tree to see Christ, divide by the number of Apostles that were called the sons of Thunder. The answer will be the number of fish I caught."

Easy Way to Figure Interest.

Here is a method of computing interest on any number of dollars at 6 per cent., which appears simple. Multiply any given number of dollars by the number of days of interest desired, separate the right hand figure and divide by six, the result is the true interest for such sum for such number of days at 6 per cent. The rule is so simple and so true, according to all business uses, that every banker, broker, merchant or clerk should post it up for reference. There being no such thing as a traction in it, there is scarcely any liability to error or mistake. By no other arithmetical process can the desired information be obtained by so few figures.

ERECTING HIS OWN MONUMENT.

How Lester Bryant, the Boy Champion Corn Grower of Kentucky, Will Buy His Own Memorial With His Record Crop of Corn.

One very frequently hears the remark, "That fellow is erecting his own monument." No one in the Rockfield neighborhood last summer ever thought that Lester Bryant's record crop of corn would be the means of building him a memorial. No one watching a vigorous youngster put his life and soul into the work as he did could have foreseen such an event, and yet if the plans of the Hon. J. W. Newman carry, and they are sure to, the boy will have erected his own memorial.

At the funeral of Lester Bryant a few days after his tragic death at Washington Mr. Newman outlined his plan to a few close friends. The plan was so unique and so easy of handling that it was soon after decided upon. Mr. Newman has bought Lester Bryant's crop of fine Kentucky tested, Boone County White seed corn from the boy's father and had Dr. Mutchler, the government expert in charge of the Boys' Corn club movement, pick out fifty bushels of extra seed corn. This carefully selected stock seed corn will be offered for sale as the Lester Bryant Strain of Boone County White. It will be sold at $1 per ear. All the money realized from the sale of this remarkable corn will be placed in bank at Frankfort to the credit of the Lester Bryant memorial fund. As there will probably be at least 3,500 ears in the fifty bushels of corn, a magnificent monument is sure to rise in the Bowling Green cemetery, where the boy is buried.

Kentucky's Boys' Corn Clubs.

The Boys' Corn club movement is only two years old in this state, and yet big things have been accomplished. The Corn club boys, several thousand of them, are enthusiastic; but better than enthusiasm are the results that have come from the work.

When the state champions met in Washington this winter with the experts who had charge of the work in the various states, there was naturally a feeling of intense rivalry. Twelve of the southern states that had been pushing the Boys' Corn club idea for several years, had records of 442 boys that had grown over 100 bushels on an acre. Alabama and Georgia each had over 100 boys with this record to their credit, but both of these states had been organized for club work for the past eight years. It is very gratifying to be able to write that Kentucky, with an organization of only two years, made a splendid record. Fifty-seven boys in Kentucky this past season grew over 100 bushels of corn to the acre. How many adult farmers did that well?

THE ADAIR COUNTY NEWS.

Gradyville.

We are having fine weather at this time.

Messrs. Yates and Cheatham, of Milltown, were here last week looking after hogs.

Rev. Pangburn filled his regular appointment last Sunday at this place.

George Vance and family, of Pyrus, spent last Sunday with the family of W. B. Dulin.

Mr. Robert O. Keltner and family attended the marriage of Miss Sullivan to Mr. Vales, near East Fork one day last week.

Miss Maggie Bragg returned from Louisville last Friday. She will leave for Jamestown in a few days where she will engage in the millinery business this season.

The most of the hogs in this section have been engaged for April delivery at 7 cents per lb. They are mast fed hogs.

Mr. W. W. Yates who is spending the winter with his nephew, W. C. Yates, at Portland, was in our midst last Saturday looking hale and hearty.

No new cases of mumps in our town at present. We think if the good Lord is willing we have had our share of them for the past three months.

The remains of Miss Squires of the community of Edmonton, were entered at Union cemetery last Friday. She was a sister of Mrs. Downey Hughes, and well known in this community.

Mesdames Moss and Yates who have been in the millinery business in the community of Nell, for the past two years will open their goods for display the 22nd.

Herschel Baker, of Columbia, was here one day last week and bought a nice lot of hickory timber from D. C. Wheeler.

Charlie Herriford, of Columbia, in company with a lumber man that your reporter failed to get his name, bought a large amount of timber last week from J. A. Diddle & Co.

We feel safe in saying that Huston Bradshaw has three of the finest cattle that was ever in this section. They are thoroughbred angus aberdeen, one male and two female, for which he paid $250. Mr. Bradshaw should be complimented in making the start for our farmers to improve their stock of cattle.

Col. J. N. Coffey, of Columbia, spent a day or so in this community last week, surveying. We had the pleasure of talking with him on the road subject, and we take it that his ideas on that subject are exactly right, and we believe if the Fiscal court will stand by the Colonel, that in less time than two years old Adair will have as good dirt roads as any section of the State.

We had the pleasure a few days ago of visiting the firm of Rodgers & Co., tobacco dealers in the Keltner community. This firm have bought and shipped something like 175 hogheads, and they informed us that they had been doing well with their purchase until recently the market was off a little.

The many readers of the News in this part of the country were glad to read the communication from our old friend and neighbor, Vands Leftwich, of Tioga, Texas. We are certainly glad to know of our Adair boys coming to the front. When we call back just a few years ago, when we were bare-footed school boys together, reared up in the same community, it only seems but yesterday. We have not words to express the appreciation of your communications. Let us hear from you again.

Mrs. L. C. Nell has been on the sick list for the past week or so.

John A. Hobson, Greensburg, Ky., will pay you best prices for your hogs, sheep or cattle. Write or phone him.

Rowes X Roads.

Waco McKinley and Miss Adell Marcum went to Columbia last week and were married. They will locate at Knifley and Waco will go into the tomb-stone business.

Fin Holt has gone into the goods business at Esto. He will rebuild this spring.

Lucian Jones cut his foot awfully bad 10 days ago, and he don't get much better.

Bill Cook has gone to Columbia to wait on his children who have got the measles.

The 4th of March as usual, old uncle Johnathan Blakey and wife had their birthday dinner, the old man was 67 years old. The neighbors set a good dinner and got uncle Jonathan a good lot of wood, which was much needed. The old folks are very feeble and won't have many more birthday dinners.

It is just another boy at Henry Aaron's. Mother and baby are doing well.

One day last week 46 of Tigar Montgomery's friends and neighbors come in on him with well filled baskets, the secret was that it was Tigar's birthday and he had a fat goose cooked up and sop and dumplings spread all over it. After all had eat their fill the crowd retired to the parlor room after which the writer read the 13 chapter of first Corinthians and prayed with the people, and we all went away feeling that we had not spent the day in vain.

My old friend, John Hanes, does not get any better. His case is critical.

Robert Hadley's family is on Sulphur visiting this week.

Gentry's Mill.

The farmers are beginning to commence their spring work now. There have been several acres of oat ground turned in the last week, and some few have sown oats and the March breeze is going to be bad on them.

Messrs. Joe Wilson and George Carter had wells drilled last week, and it will add much value to their farms.

Charles Bryant sold one calf to W. G. Rooks for $12.

Mr. Nathan Bryant sold out last week to go to Illinois.

H. T. Blair sold one cow for $35.

It is a girl at T. A. Alley's, and a girl at Mike Deans.

There was a candy breaking at Mr. Joe Bryant's the other night, and all present seemed to enjoy it.

The boys are beginning to leave for the West now Spring is opening up.

Mr. Elmer Deaner of Russell Springs, and Miss Ida Bryant, of Sano, were quietly married at the bride's home last Sunday.

The ceremony was performed by preacher Voils, and the couple left for Illinois shortly after the ceremony was said.

Mr. U. G. Anderson and Miss Lillie Deaner are in Green county this week teaching a singing school.

Miss Laura Bryant and Miss Martha Conover, of this place, attended the wedding of Miss Ida Bryant's, of Sano, last Sunday.

Otha Sullivan, Crit Bryant, Otha Brockman, Nathan Bryant and Garfield Rooks were all visiting James Bryant, last Sunday.

Pellyton.

March started in with very cold weather. We hope that the old saying if March comes in like a lion it will go out like a lamb will prove true.

Farmers have been very busy turning corn ground.

Mrs. Pearl Hardin and children, Jack and Velmer, of Campbellsville, are visiting Mrs. Hardin's father, Rev. W. H. Lemon, at this place.

Joe Powell, Leonard Prock, Owen Barnett and Bennie Powell left for Illinois a few days ago.

Rev. C. C. Baker, of Dunnville, is visiting friends and relatives in this neighborhood at present.

Born, to the wife of G. N. Roberts, a fine boy.

Rev. W. H. Lemon attended the funeral of his cousin, John Lemon, in Lemon's Bend last week.

Mr. J. H. Sanders is very sick at this writing.

Estil Henson, who has been attending the L. W. T. S., is at his grandfather's, Mr. J. M. Perryman, sick with the measles.

Mrs. Flora Ellis and son, Welby, visited Mrs. Ellis' sister, Mrs. Marion Rice, at Elkhorn last week. Mrs. Rice has been very sick.

Mr. H. A. Wethington was here last week and bought a nice bunch of hogs at 6c.

Mont Damron, of Dunnville, was here Saturday buying hogs at 6c. There has been more hogs sold in this section this winter than for several years.

W. P. Walling, of Campbellsville, has bought a nice boundary of timber from Mrs. Mary E. Lemon. Joe Blair has the contract for cutting, logging and hauling the lumber to Campbellsville. Jasper Doss will saw the lumber.

W. S. Sinclair sold a good three year old horse to D. S. Ellis for $90.

Mr. Jacob Chelf, of Casey Creek, was here a few days ago in the interest of his candidacy for Assessor.

Mrs. Robert Parsons returned a few days ago from visiting relatives in Virginia and North Carolina.

Dirigo

Finis Stotts, Amandaville, was here last Sunday.

The woods in this section are full of hogs and cattle buyers. Several head of cattle and quite a number of hogs have changed hands within the last few days.

Glen, the little son of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Campbell is very sick at this writing.

Ace Polson has moved from

A WOMAN IS AS OLD AS SHE LOOKS

Thousands of women owe their youthful appearance to Newbro's Herpicide. No matter what may be her age, a woman with a nice head of hair, hair that is soft, glossy and fluffy, always looks younger than she is.

Herpicide makes the hair beautiful with that sheen and shimmer which is so attractive and always indicates a healthy, natural growth. It keeps the scalp free from dandruff and the hair from falling out.

There are remedies said to be "just as good," but Herpicide is the genuine original dandruff germ destroyer.
